WEDNESDAY
NOVEMBER 24, 1954

Mr. Bullock, Chief of Staff of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives, came and had a long talk with me this morning. I always enjoy exchanging ideas with him. In the afternoon I sat for the last time for Léonor Fini.

Audrey Bouverie had tea with me at the house. She is returning to England tonight.

Evangeline is back in bed with a recurrence of fever.

I talked today to André de Staercke on the telephone and wrote to Harry Labouisse congratulating him with all my heart on his marriage to my dear friend Eve Curie.
